

Natalija Juhart Brglez: Geometric Walks; Exploring the Urban Landscape

12 January–10 February 2024

artKIT

You are cordially invited to the opening of the exhibition Geometric Walks: Exploring the Urban Landscape by artist and painter Natalija Juhart Brglez, which will take place on Friday, 12 January 2024, at 7 p.m. at artKIT.

The artist's work focuses on the exploration of urban space. She analyzes it through the eyes of the walker who returns to a particular place and explores it by noticing architectural features, geometric structures or ornaments. Individual condensed details are brought together in a composition through repetitions of geometric elements to form a spatially coherent whole of a panorama or veduta, but the artist also strives to shape the space by bringing together and breaking up several perspectives and views of a place. She merges precise, almost architectural drawings of the city with color surfaces and spatial lines. In this way, she presents the familiar city with new accents, anomalies and mirror images.

The artist starts from a precise drawing that is refined using the traditional printing techniques of intaglio, etching and aquatint or a combination of these techniques and, for some years now, silkscreen.
